1.2 Methods

This is how I did the thing with this data (Table 1.1)

1.3.2 A Really Long Heading so I see what happens when it takes up more than one line just in case we're geeting crazy

These are my first results (Figure 1.1).

And then I also got these results (Figure 1.2).

Chapter 2: My Chapter Title

2.1 Introduction

Here we go again. Here we go again.

2.2 Methods

This is how I did the thing

See test 2.1

2.3 Results

These are more results 2.1. Cross-referencing this figure is possible thanks to the bookdown package (Xie, 2016) and we can use the visual markdown editor from Rstudio to make writing in markdown easier (Allaire, 2012).

Let's reference figure 1.1 from chapter 1 from chapter 2

2.3.1 An Equation and some math

$$Y = mx + b \tag{2.1}$$

Inline math example: $1 + 1 = 2$

Display math example:

$$2 + 2 = 4$$

This is the equation of a line Equation (2.1)

2.4 Discussion

Now I tell you how this fits in the context of my field.

Chapter 3: My Chapter Title

3.1 Synthesis

Everything fits together so well!

3.2 Future Work

Ok it didn't fit together so well so I guess we should look at these things, but I have to graduate and there's no more money but maybe someone some day can look into this.
